

Saunders Law

— Ltd —

Hannah Sampson

Solicitor

Motoring & Crime

hannahsampson@saunders.co.uk

Educated at The Abbey School for girls and Pocklington Grammer, Hannah went to complete her law degree at Southbank university before completing her legal studies at BPP central London Law school.

Hannah has always practised Criminal Law since being admitted as a solicitor in 2002 and joined Saunders in 2009 as a solicitor where she continues to practise criminal law.

Hannah's work covers the broadest spectrum from shoplifting to murder. Hannah has a particular interest in motoring law and regularly appears all over the country representing clients facing Road Traffic and motoring related offences. Hannah is an advocate in both the Magistrates Court and Youth Court and also works alongside counsel in the Crown Court and Court of Appeal.